The Man Who Knew Infinity is a 2014 biographical drama about Indian mathematical genius Srinivasa Ramanujan, directed by James Marsh. It was based on the biography of the same name, written by Robert Kanigel. The film stars Dev Patel as Ramanujan and Jeremy Irons as G. H. Hardy, with supporting roles for David Gyasi and William Hurt.

Ever since he was a young boy, Ramanujan has been deeply passionate about mathematics and dreaming of becoming an Indian mathematician like his idol Sir Bhaskaracharya at Cambridge University in England. It is at Cambridge that Ramanujan meets Hardy, who thinks Ramanujan is just a boy with an imagination. Hardy tells Ramanujan that he doesn't believe in his genius. But Ramanujan doesn't give up and keeps on pursuing his dream, despite doubters like Hardy, who thinks Ramanujan is nothing but an overaccomplished Indian boy. Through his relentless pursuit of the truth behind irrational numbers, Ramanujan transforms the world of mathematics and sparks many new discoveries like the Dirac Equation. Ramanujan lived most of his life unrecognized as a mathematical genius. At the end of the film, Ramanujan is diagnosed with incurable cancer. As he lay dying, he received recognition for his brilliance from his colleagues. The Man Who Knew Infinity was released theatrically in North America on April 29, 2016. The film was released direct-to-video in India on 27 September 2016 because there are many differences between the original story published in "Physics Today" and that depicted in the movie, notably the omission of Ramanujan's paramour.

The film score was written by Mica Levi and Max Richter, who previously collaborated on 2013's Under the Skin scored by Richter. The film mostly received positive reviews. On Rotten Tomatoes, the film has a rating of 73% based on 83 reviews, with an average rating of 6.8/10. The site's critical consensus reads, "'The Man Who Knew Infinity' benefits from fine performances and a thoughtful approach to its real-life story -- and it helps that it's as bright as the numbers that drive its narrative." On Metacritic, the film has a score of 71 out of 100, based on 19 critics, indicating "generally favorable reviews". Audiences surveyed by CinemaScore gave the film an average grade of "B" on an A+ to F scale. The National Board of Review named Dev Patel as among their Top Ten breakout stars for 2016.
